Officers explained that national guidance was still awaited and that they would share this with the Committee when more guidance was received.	The national guidance from Government at the end of March required all rough sleepers and homeless people in unsuitable accommodation to be placed in self-contained accommodation that was consistent with requirements for social distancing. In many cases these are local hotels or guesthouses. That guidance is still in force and is being delivered by district councils and Peterborough City Council. Further guidance and support is expected very shortly from Government to support rough sleepers on to pathways into accommodation rather than back on to the streets once the lockdown is lifted.
